The Lobster Catch.

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island advices go to show that the lobster catch for the season, which closed Aug. 1, was the most successful of any season for the past ten or twelve years. Especially is this the case with the factories bordering on the Northumberland straits. A gentleman interested in lobster canning makes the statement that these factories will on the whole average a net profit of about $1,000 each. Taking into consideration the fact that the season for catching lobsters is by law restricted to June and July, this profit must be regarded as enormous.

The benefit of the short season is now becoming apparent in the increased catch, which is almost double that of previous years, while the lobsters are just the right size for canning purposes. Such has been the rapid spread of the canneries that every available site along the shores of the Straits of Northumberland has been taken up, and parties desirous of investing money in the business are withheld by the difficulty of procuring a favorable cove or beach.

A good idea of the profits of lobster canning may be gathered from the fact that while a pound tin is put up ready for shipment at a cost of about nine cents they are taken from the canneries by wholesale dealers who pay from seventeen to twenty cents per tin. An American firm owning fourteen factories ships its entire product to the French and English market direct, and all its tins are labeled "Machias Bay Lobsters," notwithstanding the fact that the contents were caught in Dominion waters, put up on Canadian soil and by Nova S. workmen. —Montreal Gazette.

Regulating Nuisances.

Organ grinders, like Artemus Ward's Betsy Jane, want a little "regulating" at times in London, and the prospects of Mr. Jacoby's modest legislative efforts to this end will probably be brightened by the reports which Lord Salisbury has lately gathered from our representatives abroad. In Vienna, it seems, licenses are granted by the police to itinerant musicians, but only to those who are unable to earn their livelihood by any other means. In Paris anybody wishing to perform "as an itinerant mountebank, organ grinder, musician or singer," must apply for a license to the prefect of police, and it is obligatory that a certificate of good character accompany the application. In Berlin "those persons who as a means of livelihood and not in the interest of art perform on musical instruments in open places or public streets or in courtyards," require a license from the local police. In Rome the matter is provided for by the law of public security, and organ grinders are not allowed by the Russian government to reside in St. Petersburg. In Madrid they are "suppressed" as an "intolerable nuisance." —London Telegraph.

Sheds Her Skin Regularly.

Dr. Frank, whose paper on cases of human beings who shed their skin regularly created so much interest in the Chicago Medical society, has received the following letter from Mrs. E. Shutt, of Adman, Washington county, Neb.: "I am thirty-nine years old, and since the year 1876 have had an attack of this kind every second or third year regularly. In March, 1889, I had a very bad time and entirely shed my skin. In May of the same year I had another 'spell,' as I call it. My skin came off in the same manner as this man you wrote about. My hair falls off every time and my nails come out. In March of this year it was the same old story. My symptoms were the same as those of Mr. Price. My motive in writing to you is to prove to you there is another case like the one you write about." —Omaha Bee.

Juggler Bamboula Dead.

A once well known character in the streets of Paris has just died in the asylum at Bicetre. I allude to the negro juggler, Bamboula, who, when I paid my first visit to Paris, was quite a prominent character in the ranks of al fresco entertainers. He used to quickly attract a crowd by the extraordinary way in which he cracked an enormous whip he carried, and some of his tricks were really very clever. One I well remember, was his apparent consumption of a big brick. He was a native of Martinique, and when in his prime, and during the Paris season, often used to make as much as thirty francs a day. —London Figaro.

The Rat and the Clam.

On Thursday a rat that was fooling around among the clams in an icechest, rear part of the Henry House, met with a serious accident. A large clam that had its shells open, taking in some fresh air, was suddenly disturbed by something that made it very mad, causing it to close its doors tight and hold the intruder a prisoner. The clam had shut down upon a hind leg of a rat. The rodent squeaked and the noise attracted attention enough to inquire into the cause of it. The rat was slain, but it could not be released until the shells of the clam were smashed to pieces. —Williamsport Sun

A Large Pickerel.

Edward Koch, of the Willow Fishing and Boating club, caught a pickerel at Muskego lake which weighed 904 pounds when dressed. This is said to be the largest pickerel ever caught in that lake. It measured over four feet. Mr. Koch will have it mounted and will present it to the public museum. —Milwaukee Sentinel.

"German Syrup"

J. C. Davis, Rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Eufaula, Ala.: "My son has been badly afflicted with a fearful and threatening cough for several months, and after trying several prescriptions from physicians which failed to relieve him, he has been perfectly restored by the use of two bottles of Bo-An Episcopal schree's German Syrup. I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. It is for these long-standing cases that Bosch's German Syrup is made a specialty. Many others afflicted as this lad was, will do well to make a note of this.

J. F. Arnold, Montevideo, Minn., writes: "I always use German Syrup for a Cold on the Lungs. I have never found an equal to it—far less a superior."

TRAIN ROBBERS ARRESTED.

Thos. Horn Makes Two Daring Captures.

In the Denver Republican of November 3d there is a detailed account of the capture of the Rio Grande train robbers, made by C. W. Shores, Sheriff of Gunnison county, Colorado, and Thos. Horn. Shores will be remembered in Reno as the gentleman who was a witness in the first trial of Horn, and who came from Colorado to testify in Horn's behalf.

Supt. McFarland of the Agency states that the gang who committed the Texas Creek robbery was undoubtedly made up of the hardest lot of men ever gotten together and that they have been the terror of the southwest for years.

The men captured were Tom Watson, alias Bob Eldridge, alias Bob Eekridge, alias "Peg leg," and Bert Curtis, alias Don't Breckinridge, alias Bert McNeil, who held up the Rio Grande express train at Texas Creek on the night of Sept. 1st, 1891.

After obtaining descriptions of the men and other information necessary, the Manager of the Rio Grande Road, Mr. Cramer, laid the matter before the Pinkerton Agency, who called in Sheriff Shores and detailed with him Thomas Horn. The story of the three-week's pursuit and capture is vividly told in the Denver Republican. One of the men was captured after an all night's watch, and the following description, taken from the Denver Republican, is of the capture of the famous Peg leg by Horn alone.

A SINGLE-HANDED CAPTURE.

"The Pinkerton man remained in the neighborhood of the Polk cabin in some thick underbrush. He had plenty of lunch with him and was ready for a long wait. After waiting patiently, on Thursday evening, as it was nearing dusk, he noticed a man riding towards him from the south on a sorrel horse. He was about a quarter of a mile distant, but, from his general make-up, the detective was satisfied it was 'Peg leg.'"

"It was the supreme moment of the stern chase and the man in the brush could only wait while the prey approached. As the distance lessened the detective recognized the wooden leg and the other peculiarities of the man he was after. From the holsters on the saddle two dangerous-looking revolvers were plainly hanging, while in his hands, Peg leg carried a Winchester."

"Confidently the outlaw rode toward the place of his pursuer's concealment, with not the slightest movement to betray distrust. Now the distance was fifty, now twenty-five, now fifteen yards. The glinting barrel of a Winchester then protruded from the brush and the ringing voice of the detective warned the fugitive to throw up his hands. Peg leg was probably never more astonished in his life. He made an effort to turn his horse, but the animal only became refractory and brought him nearer the detective, who almost shoved the rifle into his stomach."

"Peg leg then got off, the detective took his horse and guns and took him to Washoe. On Friday night he took him, man, all unshackled, on the gulf train to Newton, Kansas, from whence he brought him to Denver."

The Pinkerton operator who thus covered himself and superiors with glory by his work on the case and his capture of the notorious Peg leg, is, as stated by Supt. McFarland, one of the best men in the business, and is none other than Thomas Horn, who is by all well-known in Reno.

THE WINTERS BREEDING STABLES.

The Home of the Noted Monarchs of the Turf.

A JOURNAL reporter visited Theodore Winters' ranch a few days ago and was surprised at the magnitude of his horse breeding establishment. He has completed an immense barn in which there are twenty-two large box stalls for his famous thoroughbreds and sixteen stalls for colts that are being weaned. Inside the barn is a labyrinthine track twelve feet wide and nearly a quarter of a mile long for exercising horses in stormy and in very cold weather. The upper story or loft will hold three hundred tons of hay, and it contains eight grain bins capable of holding ten tons each.

The barn is supplied with water carried in pipes from a spring on the mountain side some distance away. There are two other barns of less magnitude filled with stalls for driving and ranch horses, and fifteen box stalls for racers. Mr. Winters has bred thirty-two mares this season from the world renowned horses El Rio Rey and Joe Hooker. He is now breeding all his horses in Nevada, having brought the last of his mares from his ranch near Sacramento, though it is not probable that California will desert from claiming his stable as "California horses," though the horses are bred and raised in Nevada.

The Winters' stables have produced more winning horses than any other in the United States in proportion to the number of mares bred.

The sweet strains of music that float from the upper story of the National Bank are from the Fredrick orchestra, whose diligent practice is making them an able body of musicians. It recalls one to scenes in city life. Their selections are choice, being from the latest theatrical orchestral music. Few towns the size of Reno possess such an excellent musical organization.

Hon. Lem Allen of Stillwater is in town. He says they are feeding over 2,000 head of beavers in that oasis in the desert county.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

MEADOW LAKE.

Anecdotes Brought Up By the Recent Deal.

The old Meadow Lake properties have found a purchaser at last in a French syndicate, and "Hermit" Hartley, as the owner is termed, is about, it is said, to start on a continental tour with his wife. This district has passed through many vicissitudes since the time when a town of over 10,000 inhabitants sprung up like magic, only to disappear as rapidly when the great mountains of ore in the vicinity were discovered to be valueless from the fact that no process could be found to extract the gold which it was supposed to contain. The most extensive locations were the Excelsior mines, Nos. 1 and 2, and the Union claims. The name of the former has been immortalized in verse by the pen of a pioneer mining poet, who ably depicts the exasperation and disgust of the men who rode into the camp expecting to find a bonanza, and tramped back to Virginia City amidst a cloud of dust and profanity. The following stanza, which closes the poem referred to, is highly suggestive of the prospector's feelings on the occasion:

"At Huffakers he last was seen,
Imbibing nitro-glycerine,
And as he gulped each fiery dram,
In accents wild he cried 'dog on'
'Excelsior.'" —S. F. News Letter.

Free Water.

Parties in Reno having good wells or a place for one are throwing away money in paying water rates, when by a small investment plenty of pure water is at their command free of cost. One good well will supply water for several families, who by joining in the expense of erecting a windmill, tank, etc., can not only effect a saving in expenses, but be independent of a monopolizing water service. A visit to the Water Company's reservoir and ditch at times will convince the most skeptical that well water is the doctor's enemy, while surface water is the direct agent in bringing business to his office.

Constant pumping insures pure water from all good wells, hence the quality of well water cannot be judged properly from only occasional pumpings. Many unused wells would furnish plenty of pure, clear water if properly pumped.

Can you afford a pumping plant of your own? We will answer for you, Yes.

We are prepared to take contracts this Winter to erect any sized wind-mill plant required, with proper tank and service connection, furnishing them on a monthly installment plan, warranting all work and taking proper care of all mills so erected.

Plans and specifications free upon application. anti-freezing pumps and protected pipes insure equally as good Winter service as in Summer. For further particulars call on
